THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 9, 1882.

POWERFUL LITERATURE.

It [illegible] publication which [illegible] Hubbell [illegible] the republic [illegible] weekly numbers [illegible] the great congressional document of the year. It was described by itself as a journal of politics published by the republican congressional committee, and it was put forth as the [illegible] for the contests of 1882. Nothing could be more significant than the [illegible] between this publication and the election returns. No wonder the republican party could [illegible] on their appeals. Yet Hubbell seems to have imagined that he was making a [illegible] and effective "campaign." Its ammunition was fired in alternate volleys at the democratic party and at the republicans who were refusing to [illegible] him. The attacks on the democratic party were mostly directed against political warfare long since laid in their graves. Thus The Crow [illegible] belonged chiefly to the domain of ancient history. Were it possible, by printing an argument in italics on forgotten questions, to make a strong appeal, then Hubbell would have been very successful. Except as a matter of history, however, people of this age are not greatly interested in the "counting in" of James K. Polk by the democrats in 1844. All the italics which the type foundries could produce, if used in presenting that "fraud," would not change the vote of any man living to-day, who has already heard that General Jackson is dead. And when Hubbell attempted to show that free trade was "the hand-maid of secession and slavery," he must have supposed at least that he was addressing those who believed that secession and slavery were still troubling the repose of the republic. Freshness was added to the argument by reprinting speeches made in 1827 and thereabouts in which are found "seditious and treasonable utterances," followed by an account of mammoth frauds of Washington rings under Pierce and Buchanan, and of the feculent, reeking corruption" of some people during the Mexican war. Then descending to comparatively modern times this publication waved the "bloody shirt" with pathetic vigor, giving stories of southern atrocities fit to curdle the blood of any voter. Then the reformers of the republican party came in for a fling. There was a savage attack on George William Curtis and others for opposing political assessments and for criticising Hubbell, the assessor. And to crown all, the democrats were arraigned as being guilty of making political assessments a practice which, in fact, "had its rise in the corruptions of that party!" This, from Hubbell, was the heaviest shot of all. On the whole the outcome of a "campaign" carried on with such literature does not appear to have been successful enough to warrant a repetition of the experiment. Hubbell's occupation's gone.

THE MAIL SERVICE.

During the year ended June 30, 1882, the cost of mail transportation by the railways of the country was $10,373,515. No less than 8991 miles of railway service was added during the year. There are now over 100,000 miles of this service, reaching every state and territory of the union. The cost of star service, the next largest item in transportation of the mails, was $5,553,849 for the fiscal year—a reduction from the cost for the previous year of $1,403,506. The largest part of this saving was due to revision of the service under honest management in the department, though some of it was the result of supersedure of star service by railway service. There has been no diminution of needed facilities for the transmission of the mails. On the contrary, the service has been very largely extended.

The estimate for all items of transportation for 1884 reaches the sum of $25,409,120, though the appropriations for 1883 amount to $26,041,000. It is supposed that completion of many railroads now in course of construction, which may be expected by 1884, will enable the department to make a reduction. But this will probably be found an erroneous supposition. Of the receipts of the department for the last fiscal year, which amounted to $41,265,317, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Massachusetts contributed $20,432,000, or almost exactly one-half of the whole. The states in which the receipts exceeded the expenditures were the six New England, the four middle, and Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota. The greatest excess was in New York, the sum being $2,500,000. In Pennsylvania and Massachusetts the excess was a little more than $1,000,000 in each. In Ohio, the expenditures exceeded the receipts, the excess being nearly $250,000. The four states of Vermont, Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota, were brought over from the debit to the credit side, the expenses being less than the receipts. There are many indications pointing to cheaper postage in the near future, and that without any serious loss to the revenues of the government from this source. The falling off in receipts which would follow a reduction would not be permanent, but would soon be regained and more than compensated for by the increase in the volume of matter to be transported.

ENGLAND AND EGYPT.

England is as yet giving no certain intimation of her intentions in regard to Egypt. Several weeks have elapsed since the final overthrow of Arabi Pasha; and yet the whole question of the settlement remains in abeyance. It is a singular fact that while England hesitates to move or delays action, the other nations, so far from opposing, are expecting her to act, and even encouraging her to do so. They seem to look for permanent occupation of Egypt by the English. Of the position of France in the matter the Paris Debats says: "We may feel humiliated, but we have only ourselves to blame. We refused to move one step. We refused to do anything. We left England room to step in and she did so. We refused to act when our fellow countrymen were in danger and appealed to us for help." And again: "With what face can we call upon England to act the part of a charwoman to sweep the place clean for us, to step in and re-establish a state of things for which we declined to risk men or money?" The Soleil states its conviction that the restoration of the status quo ante bellum is neither possible nor desirable. The Pays believes that England will have sense enough to occupy Egypt just as France did Tunis. The Berlin Post says that France should resign herself to the loss of influence in Egypt. The Volks Zeitung denounces the statement of the Cologne Gazette that British soldiers killed wounded Egyptians at Tel-el-Kebir as unfounded, and says that in making them the latter paper covered itself with shame. The eminent Egyptologist, Herr Brugsch, has just published an essay on "England in Egypt," in which he advocates the creation of a central administration under English control. A day or two since our dispatches stated the house of commons had appointed a day of next week to consider the Egyptian question when, it is [illegible] less some statement of definite policy will be evolved.

Last year 26,170 new houses, covering a length of eighty-[illegible] miles, were built in the metropolitan area of London, which now contains 4,78[illegible] persons: the largest number probably ever packed within fifteen miles of a common centre. In the streets of this great city last year, by various forms of accident, 252 persons were killed and 3400 wounded. One of the mysteries is the disappearance of several thousands of persons each year who are never afterwards heard of.

It is said [illegible] the New York Times [illegible] of Messrs. A. Weber and [illegible]. [illegible] taking in this way about [illegible] and their work would be declared [illegible] by [illegible] the Times [illegible].

Bryant's favorite house at Roslyn, New York, has been abandoned by the family. Irving's much-loved Sunnyside is held by strangers. Cooper's home at Cooperstown was destroyed by fire. The picturesque Idlewild of Mr. Willis has been twice in the market. Greeley's Chappaqua is for sale, as is [illegible] Holland's summer home at the Thousand Islands, and Bayard Taylor's cottage has passed out of the hands of the Taylor family.

A German arithmetician has been calculating the aggregate number of combinations in the game of dominoes, and has shown them to be [illegible]. He finds that two players playing [illegible] games a minute would only exhaust them in 118 million years. This pleasant pastime may be recommended to Messrs. Arthur, Folger, Cameron & Co., who will now want something of the kind to occupy their attention.

Among the defeated is Gov. St. John, the great apostle of prohibition in Kansas. He is beaten on the liquor question in a state which has incorporated prohibition into its constitution; and what is hardly less significant, he is beaten on this question as the candidate of a party which has 40,000 majority in the state. It is the hardest blow the prohibitionists have received this year.

Jo Blackburn of Kentucky goes back to congress. His party will tremble. It was Jo's speeches in congress prior to the last presidential election which, more than all other things, put his party on the defensive.

"Stoneman is running along," said a democratic paper of California a week before the election, "with the easy grace of a jack rabbit." It would seem so; and yet the shocking want of dignity in the illustration!

Sam Randall will be speaker of the house again, and will organize the committee to protect "protection." Yet in most localities the democrats talk of being a free trade party.

For all practical purposes it may be conceded that Arthur's man got no votes. The majority against him is only 174,000.

It is unnecessary to moralize on the lesson of the elections. No comment could make the matter plainer.

YAQUINA BAY NEWS.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEWPORT, Nov. 4th.

For the past week we have had severe winds, but the barometer has gone up and we are having splendid weather now.

Messrs Brassfield and Williams have returned from Portland, looking happy, they having purchased a large stock of goods, to arrive on the Kate and Anna, which is expected daily.

Ben Gardiner, proprietor of the Gem saloon in Newport, received a letter from Chicago informing him of his aunt's death, leaving him a legacy of $30,000. He starts back by first steamer.

The steamer [illegible] visited our bay for the first time last week. She is a fine little craft and a very fine sea boat. Capt. Yarnberg and Jos. Ball are her officers. She is the first vessel entered in this custom house books.

The schooner Vanderbilt, Capt. Jas. Wyant, arrived from San Francisco with freight for the Siletz reservation and merchants of Newport. This is the captain's last trip this winter. He had very rough weather up and expects to get out the 5th. Captain Disaway, wife and daughter will be passengers down.

Hon. R. A. Bensell has returned from Salem, and with his invalid wife had moved to their home at Newport. Mrs. B. has been under the care of physicians for some months past. She is now slowly but steadily improving. Her many friends will be pleased to know she will soon regain her usual health.

The Vanderbilt has brought the machinery for Davis & Son's steam ferry boat. They expect to put it in place immediately and then be able to accommodate the public at any stage of tide or wind. It will be a great improvement over the old way. She also brought two steam derricks for the government to be used for loading and unloading rock.

SALEM NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SALEM, Nov. 8.

The new shops at the penitentiary are near completion.

Mrs. M. G. Harbord, of this city, was thrown from a wagon yesterday and received severe injuries.

J. P. Frise, jr., contemplates opening a [illegible] at New Tacoma, W. T., within a few weeks. His friends wish him success.

Quite a number of Salemites will visit Portland tomorrow for the purpose of attending the reception to be given to Hon. and Mrs. J. N. Dolph.

Our new state librarian, Geo. W. Condon, has already ordered a number of books with a view of making the state library more complete in every particular.

Gov. Moody is making new friends daily in his administration of state affairs, and his Private secretary has proved a valuable acquisition to the society of Salem.

The funeral of L. B. Royal, a member of Hope Lodge, No. 1, A. O. U. W., of Portland, took place here on Monday last under the auspices of Protection Lodge, No. 2. It was largely attended.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Croasman will celebrate their wooden wedding at the residence of Hon. & [illegible] Cally this evening. A large number of invitations have gone out and a pleasant time is anticipated.

Gov. Moody went to Portland yesterday to effect arrangements by which the insane patients will be returned over to the state at any time when the new asylum building will be ready to receive them.

The Shakesperian club met last evening at the hall of Capital Engine Company No. 1 and organized for the ensuing year by the election of the following officers: E. P. McCornack, president; C. B. Moores, secretary, and Claude Gatch, treasurer.

The state board of education have under advisement the reopening of the blind school, the sum of $3000 having been appropriated by the last legislature for that purpose. They hope to be in readiness to receive pupils some time during the month of January.

Hon. L. Meyer contemplates disposing of his interest in the business in this city about the 1st of January, 1883, having made arrangements in connection with other parties to carry out P. Selling & Co., of Portland. Our citizens will find Gen. Meyer an active, energetic business man.

The City of Salem Company have completed the walls of their new mill and are now putting in the yard to complete it. They paid brick masons $7 a day and have some employed now to whom they are paying 80 cents an hour. They deserve great credit for their enterprise in pushing their work forward.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Owing to change of steamer days the Surgeons of the National Surgical Institute will remain at the St. Charles Hotel, Portland until Tuesday night, Nov. 14, where they can be consulted on all cases of club feet, crooked knees, hip joint disease, curvature of the spine, piles and fistula, and other chronic diseases. They are prepared to perform the most difficult operations, such as hair lip, dividing tendons, cross eyes, cataract, etc., etc.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

STATE OF OREGON, EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
SALEM, Nov. 8, 1882.

In accordance with a custom long established and in pursuance of a recommendation of Chester A. Arthur, president of the United States, I appoint and set apart Thursday, the 30th day of November, A. D. 1882, to be observed by all the people of this commonwealth as a day of public thanksgiving and praise to the Supreme Ruler of the universe, who has vouchsafed to us blessings innumerable during the year just past. He has granted abundant harvests to the husbandman, prosperity to all our other interests and general health to all of our people.

For these and all other blessings which have been our portion, I would recommend that upon the day named all secular business be discontinued, and that our people assemble in their respective houses of worship and in true sympathy with the purposes of this proclamation give unto God thanks, honor and praise for his bounty to us.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of state to be affixed thereto. Done at the capitol at Salem this 8th day of November, A. D. 1882.

Z. F. MOODY, Governor.

DECISION IN U. S. CIRCUIT COURT [illegible]

[illegible] whenever any person indebted to the United States is insolvent, or whenever the estate of any deceased debtor, in the hands of the executors or administrators, is insufficient to pay all the debts due from the deceased, the debts due to the United States shall be first satisfied; and the priority hereby established shall extend as well to cases in which a debtor not having sufficient property to pay all his debts, makes a voluntary assignment thereof, or in which the estate and effects of an absconding, concealed or absent debtor are attached by process of law, as to cases in which an act of bankruptcy is committed."

At this date, it appears that Griswold [illegible] fessed judgments to sundry persons for an aggregate sum which, together with his indebtedness to the United States and sundry mortgage creditors, far exceeded the value of his assets, and that said judgments, with the exception of the one to the plaintiffs herein for $348 82, were based upon fictitious claims and confessed with the intent to hinder, delay and defraud the United States in the collection of a claim against Griswold, then in suit in this court, and upon which it obtained judgment against him on July 31, 1879, for $35,228 and $3821.60 costs and disbursements.

Upon this state of facts it was tacitly admitted by counsel and assumed by the court on the hearing of the original case that the priority of the United States attached to the property of Griswold, subject to the liens of the valid mortgages thereof.

It is admitted that the statute giving the priority of payment was not applicable to this case, unless Griswold had made a voluntary assignment of his property; and it is also admitted that he had not done so, unless the confessing of these judgments amounted to such assignments.

There is no doubt but that the effect of these judgments by means of the lien they carried, when docketed, unless set aside at the suit of creditors for fraud, was practically to transfer whatever interest Griswold had in the property in question to the plaintiffs therein.

But upon further reflection and examination I am satisfied that they did not amount to or operate as an assignment within the purview of the statute. The latter is only applicable to cases where the debtor's estate, either by his death, legal bankruptcy or insolvency, has passed into the hands of an administrator or assignee for the benefit of his creditors or where the debtor himself has voluntarily made such disposition of it. It does not apply then to a conveyance, assignment or transfer by whatever means accomplished to a real or pretended creditor or creditors, in payment or satisfaction of a debt or claim. There must be in some way, an assignment of the debtor's property to a third person for distribution among his creditors, before the statute can be invoked, and then it operates directly upon the assignee by requiring him to pay the claim of the United States first, and making him personally liable therefor, if he do not. §3467, R. S.

The following authorities bear with more or less directness upon these conclusions: U. S. v. Fisher, 2 Cr., 390; U. S. v. Hooe, 3 Cr., 91; Conard v. The Atlantic Ins. Co., 1 Pet., 439; Beaston v. The Farmer's Bank of Delaware, 12 Pet., 133; 1 Kent's Com. 247; U. S. v. The Canal Bank, 3 Story, 81; U. S. v. McLellan, 3 Sum., 360; Conk. Treat. 13.

It follows that so much of the decree as provides that lot 8 in block 10 and the west half of lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 in block 73, in the town of Salem, shall be subject to the payment of the judgment of the United States, after they had been sold on legal process from the state court and before the entry of said judgment, upon the assumption that the priority of the United States had attached thereto, prior to such sale, to wit, on January 6, 1879, is erroneous, and must be reversed, and a decree entered dismissing the bill as to the plaintiffs in error.

George H. Williams, for the plaintiffs.
James [illegible], for the defendants.

MONTANA CATTLE.

Miss Midy Morgan's Opinion of the Possibilities of Montana as a Cattle Producing Country.

St. Paul Pioneer Press, Oct. 27.

Miss Midy Morgan, the celebrated live stock reporter of the New York Times, arrived in St. Paul last evening from Montana, where she has been to study the characteristics of the country and climate with reference to successful cattle growing. The lady stopped at the Metropolitan and, upon being interviewed, said:

Montana possesses just the right combination of food and climate to make perfect beef. The philosophy of the attainment of perfection in beef does not seem to be generally understood, even by the cattle growers who should have a knowledge of these things. Now, what makes good beef is the transition of temperature; that is, good, sweet, juicy meat cannot be grown either in a hot climate or where there is such a general average of temperature as there is in Texas. The reason for this need not be discussed, but all experiment has proven the correctness of the theory. I am prepared to say that the

TEXAS STEER IS DOOMED TO EXTINCTION

So far as supplying either the east or Europe with beef is concerned. The market does not want it and has only taken it per force of circumstances. Now that Montana beef is accessible there will be no further sale for the cattle raised in the Southwest. Even the Colorado cattle are far inferior to those fed in Montana and which have the benefit of the transition of temperature of which I speak. [illegible] these Montana steers loaded upon the cars at Miles City, and sleek, short-legged, straight backed fellows they were, averaging not less than 1100 pounds each; and I observed as I examined them I saw them unloaded in New York or New Jersey tired, jaded and feverish with their terrible journey. Then I could not help thinking of how the beef will have deteriorated from the juicy, sweet grassy flavor it possesses in Montana, to a flabby, lifeless, stringy substance sold out of the butchers' stalls, perhaps unfit for food. The next thought, of course, is that all this will be obviated in time, for some person or persons of capital will soon begin to slaughter these cattle right in their ranges, and the meat will be shipped and preserved in all its original goodness direct from Montana to eastern markets

IN REFRIGERATOR CARS,

And the days of poor beef will be numbered. The person who has been accustomed to the meat sold in New York as Montana beef cannot possibly realize the difference between the stuff he gets there and the fresh, wholesome meat used everywhere in the territory. I never tasted better beef than I ate at the table of Gen. Brisbin, at Fort Keogh last Thursday. It was simply delicious, with a certain wild or gamy flavor which was exquisite. What needs to be done—and it certainly will be in time—is to slaughter the cattle as near as may be to their ranges, and have the meat shipped in refrigerators to all points of demand. The quality of the Montana beef is already beginning to attract general attention. It is not only far superior to the Texas or Colorado beef, but excels the famous fat cattle of Kentucky, which are too gross in flesh to be palatable, although the steaks marbled with fat look nice enough in the market places. The trouble is that people do not know what sweet, juicy, tender beef is, and will not until the plan of securing Montana beef, as I have suggested, has been adopted. So far as is concerned, I should think that St. Paul might become a great point, and in fact the distributing place—although I hold that it would be better done right in Montana. But drives to this city would be far more practicable than they now are over the Texas trail, which has been continued a width of not over four miles—an effectual embargo upon further driving out of Texas eastward. So far as breeding is concerned, Montana cattle are all right. The [illegible]

Bar was then smooth, a fair breeze blowing from E N E. The three vessels were at the time under full sail with good prospect for getting off the land. At 9 A. M. [illegible] the tug Pioneer sighted two vessels off the bar, proceeded out and found the British bark Zamora, from Brisbane, and [illegible] in charge of her. The other vessel was [illegible] with Pilot Hanson on board, signaling to speak the tug. Captain Howe, of the [illegible] reported the British ship Nebo [illegible] with foretopmast and jibboom gone, and that she had signaled him to send her a tug. The Pioneer proceeded in search of her and found her in three hours. Passed a hawser on board and towed her down off Columbia river bar, but found she could not get the vessel up to the bar in time for the tide, and therefore cast off. As the wind was favorable the Nebo proceeded to San Francisco for repairs. The captain of the Zamora reports that Saturday afternoon she experienced a strong gale from S E and terrific sea. It is presumed the same gale caused the disaster to the Nebo.

A NOVELTY IN SAUCE!

MONTSERRAT

Lime Fruit Table Sauce.

Finest Table Sauce in the Market

FOR

ROAST MEATS, STEAKS,

Fish, Curries, Game, etc.

We take great pleasure in recommending the above Sauce to the public for not only its wholesomeness, being made from pure MONTSERRAT (W. I. Island) Lime Fruit Juice, but for its delicacy of flavor which makes it superior to any Sauce ever offered in this market.
